SASKATOON, October 4.

The fourth annual exhibition of the Central Saskatchewan agricultural society, held at Saskatoon on Wednesday, passed off very satisfactorily. The exhibits, though not so numerous as last year were varied and in many cases good. Samples of wheat being particularly so. Messrs. Stobart & Sons' special prizes for red fife wheat, oats and barley went to Henry Smith of Saskatoon. The competition for Hilliard Mitchell's prize for the best butter was very keen, the prize going to Mrs. Chas. Lake, of Clarke's Crossing. In garden produce, Messrs. Copeland of Saskatoon, McIntosh of Fish Creek and J. D. Caswell of Clarke's Crossing carried off most of the prizes, while in cattle and field products Caswell Bros. were the leading exhibitors. The show of horses was large, but none of the animals could be classed as anything better than ordinary. Some very handsome specimens of ladies' handiwork adorned the room set apart for that exhibit and the judges had some difficulty in deciding which was best. As usual there was considerable jealousy, but on the whole the show may be said to have been a success.

It quotes extracts from the report and agrees with his conclusion, that the Northwest legislature should appoint special agents to properly represent to the people of the east the superior advantages of this country.

Two men from Foster county, Dakota as a result of it start at once for Edmonton, and Mr. Campbell and family with their belongings intend taking the trail north as soon as they can close up their business affairs, where they are.

FIRE was still destroying the timber up the river last week. From Moore & Macdowall's limit to Goose Encampment the fire was at work everywhere, not running as fiercely as in the spring, owing to the damp weather recently, but working in the moss and felling the trees slowly but surely. In the distance mentioned scarcely any spruce remains unburned, except what is growing on sandy land where the fire could not work in the ground. What was last spring a beautiful and valuable spruce forest is now a brute, impassable almost to even a moose or a bear. The timber has not been burned away, but as soon as it has been killed by the fire at the root, even if it remains standing, as it may for a long time if sheltered from the wind, it is attacked by worms which soon render it valueless, and also tends to split or check to such a degree that it becomes useless for lumber. Poplar timber has not suffered so severely as spruce owing to the difference in the nature of the ground upon which it grows, but still a very great deal of it has been burned. The loss to the country by the destruction of timber during the past summer along the Upper Saskatchewan is almost beyond computation, and should the fall remain dry and open for long the end has not yet been reached.

WHILE Father Vegreville was driving into Edmonton from St. Albert, on Thursday, his horse took fright at a drove of sheep and ran away, throwing him out on the ground, where he lay stunned for some time, but without receiving any serious injury. The horse and rig were found all right.

MR. Cummings, a farmer from L'Original, Eastern Ontario, arrived from the south on Monday to look up the country. He has concluded to settle here and has taken a homestead in township 54 and will move his family out next summer.

A SPECIAL courier was despatched by the H. B. Co. on Thursday evening to overtake the stage. McCauley & Ibbotson supplied the horse and rider.

REV. John Nelson of Wolf Creek arrived on Friday. He goes out to-day to Riviere Qui Barre and White Whale Lake to visit the Indians at these places.

A CONSIDERABLE number of townspeople drove out to Sturgeon River church to the concert held there last night. The night was fine and the drive enjoyable.

SOME days ago a thief broke into the basement of the Presbyterian church and stole a can containing three gallons of coal oil.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, OCT. 12, 1889
PUBLIC MEETING.

A public meeting was held on Monday evening in Buchanan hall, to discuss matters relating to the Northwest legislature. There was a good attendance. On motion of F. Oliver, who had called the meeting seconded by M. McLeod, R. McKernan was appointed chairman.

Mr. Oliver being called upon said that he had felt it to be his duty, before leaving for Regina to attend the forthcoming session of the Northwest legislature, to give those whom he had the honor to represent as full an explanation as possible of what had been done and the course taken by himself at the former session. Properly the meeting should have been called at a later date, but the result of the session had only been concluded recently a more complete statement could be given at the present than at any previous time. With this in mind, his colleague, the senior member for the district, he read an explanation of his absence from the meeting. A great deal of the time of the late session had been taken up in revising the ordinances which had been passed by the late Northwest council, during the years of its existence from 75 to 88. It was felt that when that council ceased to exist was a suitable time to consolidate and amend, and as far as possible make the laws of the new order of things, the whole of the many ordinances that had been passed by it. The work was necessary, but it was tedious and laborious, and the result might not be perfect, which was impossible and as the change in circumstances of the country required perpetual changes in the law, it would probably be found that the work of the legislature in the revision made, would answer present purposes fairly well. The number of laws of the new order of things in a new and thinly populated country was that a want which in other countries was met by a municipal law had to be met by a legislative ordinance. The Ferry ordinance had been amended by doing away with the auction sale of ferry licenses, and the amount realized from the sale went to the Northwest treasury, and providing instead that where the circumstances warranted the scale of fees could be lowered, thereby giving the neighboring public instead of the Northwest treasury the benefit. On the renewal of the license of the Edmonton ferry the tolls had been reduced one half to all persons living within ten miles of the crossings excepting freighting outfit. This was a substantial advantage to residents and was better for the ferryman than compelling him to pay several hundred dollars to the Northwest treasury for his license. The school ordinance had been amended by reducing church exemption to the buildings and half an acre of land. The method of granting government aid had been changed from a specific to a percentage grant. Under the former system some districts received from the government more than they paid their teacher, while others did not receive more than half the teacher's salary. The Edmonton district was in this latter class. The new system provided that where a first class teacher was engaged 75 per cent of his salary was paid by government; a second class teacher 50 per cent and a third class teacher 65 per cent. Special assistance was given to country schools, or school districts where the school population did not exceed 25 by a grant regulated according to the per cent of attendance. Where there was an average daily attendance of 75 per cent of the pupils on the roll a grant of $60 was added. Where the average is only 50 per cent $35 is added. Assistance was provided for superior education where circumstances rendered it practicable and necessary to the extent of $50 towards a high school teacher's salary. New ordinances have been passed providing for the suppression of nuisances in unincorporated towns, and for the registration of births, marriages and deaths. The medical ordinance had been substituted for the former one, requiring a higher qualification in members of the medical profession and relaxing some of the provisions against persons outside the profession attending the sick. Owing to the fact that the Northwest is more closely under federal control in both land and local government matters than any of the provinces, and that the well being of the territories is more dependent on the action of the federal government than that of any of the provinces, and that the members of the assembly more recently and fully represented the people of the territories than the members in the house of commons it was thought not to be out of place to give expression to the views of the majority on certain federal matters of particular interest to the Northwest by means of resolutions. One of these resolutions asked for a reduction in the price of exemptions from $2 to $1 an acre outside the railway belt. The answer made on behalf of the government was that it was not believed to be "in the interests either of the settlers or of the country that special inducements should be offered to settlers to take up such lands." Another asked that the reserved old lands outside the railway belt be thrown open to settlement. The answer made to this was that the policy of reserving alternate sections was copied from the United States where it had excellent results, and if abandoned here it would be impossible to encourage colonization railways as in the past; and further that the time had not arrived when the policy advocated could be adopted. A grant of $10,000 was asked for the special purpose of inducing immigration to the Northwest by establishing agents acquainted with the Territories at desirable points in Eastern Canada, Great Britain and the United States; believing that a great part of the money now expended by the federal government for immigration purposes was wasted on account of agents being employed who knew nothing of the country. To this request it was objected, first that the sum asked was inadequate, and second that the government doubted the advisability of making subventions of the kind indicated to territories as the provinces which would make it difficult to decline similar demands from other provinces. A request had been made for advances of seed grain to the southeastern part of the territories. The answer was that in the opinion of the interior had said it would be inexpedient that any further advances of seed grain should for the present be made by the Dominion government to settlers in the Northwest, and that no dues be required for cutting of dry wood for fuel had been granted. The request for a grant to the new born between 1870 and 1885 in settlement of their claims had not yet been answered directly, but it was stated by others touched upon by the assembly had been brought up in the house of commons by Messrs. Davin and Macdowell, and to them the minister of interior had said "it may be that the government are giving very serious attention to that matter and I am sure that they will be ready to do all they possibly can to carry out the views expressed by my hon. friends from the Northwest." All the requests made had not been granted but some had been and it was the duty of every friend of the country to continue to press for the granting of those which, though refused for the time should and probably would be granted in the future. The course through which the liquor question ran at the late session was described. Although by vote of six to fourteen the members declared that the proper way to settle the question was by popular vote, when it came to paying out $5,000 for the purpose, the who declared themselves least satisfied with the present system made the strongest objections to the expenditure, and it was decided which change could be brought about. This consideration and the decision of the judges who sat in the case did not do violence to the fact that the assembly had not the right to take the vote, influenced the minds of the members so that in committee it was decided by 13 to 7 the vote should not be taken at territorial expense. Mr. (Oliver) was one of the seven who thought that if the question was of half the importance that the opponents of the present system declared it to be, a settlement even at a cost of $5,000 was most desirable. A motion was subsequently carried asking the federal government to take a vote of the people of the Northwest on the subject, or grant to the assembly the same. The result of the question as was proposed by the province. The present legislature was much more nearly in line with the desire of the people respecting the government than that the Northwest council had been. In the council the lieutenant-governor presided and voted as a member, while casting vote besides in case of a tie. As the speaker, and the lieutenant-governor does not so much as appear in the house, much less vote, which was by so much a free expression of opinion by the people's representatives. In the council six members, namely by the federal government and voted, so that in the council of '83 at least the opponents of the federal government could outside the representative of the people. The result of the vote is cast against a representative of the people. Then only small part of the country was represented. Now every part and every resident is represented by the lieutenant-governor as an officer of the federal government had full control of the territory, and the federal government purposes of government, schools and public improvements in the Northwest. Now the territory is represented by the representatives of the people and controlled by the lieutenant-governor with the aid of responsible advisors.

called the advisory board. Then all executive action was by the lieutenant-governor alone. Now it is by the lieutenant-governor acting with his advisers, who are responsible to the assembly. In the amount of money granted yearly by the federal government to the Northwest an increasing liberality was shown. For the year ending June 30th, '89 the amount was $40,400, for '87 $74,400, for '88 $97,707, for '89 $142,889 and for the current year $142,889 clear of the requirements of the registration service, which was included in the proceeds of grants, which it added to the amount given away make a total for this year of $100,889. In the prospect of this large amount of money to the Northwest was a very important matter and one which required the most careful while the constitution of the present assembly was a considerable advance upon that of the council in the direction of responsible government and the amount of the funds placed at their disposal was considerable, it was still desirable that a step forward should be made and that the constitution of the present assembly should be fixed as permanently as they are not a present, and also that the amount of money should be fixed to an amount proportionate to that received by the provinces, and made as independent of provincial opinions or circumstances as the provinces now matter what action their legislatures may take within their proper sphere. Before the powers and revenues remain the same. With the Territories, should the assembly take action in the opinion of the federal government, its powers might be restricted, its constitution altered and its revenues reduced, or cut off. As long as this is the case it is impossible for it to truly represent the people of the Northwest. It should be the business of the representatives of the people to take action within their proper sphere, which is necessary to the proper management of local government affairs. The matter of the expenditure of money for public improvements in each electoral district had been placed in the hands of the member for the district. The total amount appropriated at the late session for public improvements was $19,800, or a grant of $600 to each electoral district. It was necessary to remember that the present full representation of the people required 22 electoral districts, as against 14 in 1870, therefore $82,000 was required now to make a showing per district equal to what $14,000 would have done before. Before that time the districts were very much smaller, and the amount of money expended within their narrow limits would make a better showing than an equal expenditure spread over the present wider area. Therefore if an equal amount of money grant per district could not be shown, and if equal value for the expenditures made could be shown it was because more money had been secured or expended to better advantage than before. The appropriation to the united district of Edmonton and St. Albert had been $1,500. Recently $1,000 had been added. The Red Deer district, which had not existed before the greater part of the improvements within which Edmonton received the benefit, received $1,400 in all. Besides $1,000 had been expended in a bridge on the Blind river, there, therefore it might fairly be claimed that under the new order of things in the past year $5,300 of Northwest funds were available for public improvements benefitting the people of Edmonton. He did not think this amount had been exceeded in any one year in the past. The grant of $1,500 had been apportioned by the members jointly on a basis of population as follows:

Calgary trail	$ 200
To Miners flat and Stony Plain	$ 100
To Clover Bar	150
Fort Saskatchewan, south side	150
Beaver Lake	50
Sturgeon trail	150
Atkinsburg trail	150
Fort Saskatchewan, north side	150
Victoria	150
St. Albert	300
Lake St. Ann	100
Miscellaneous	100
Total	$1,500

The amount was then divided giving him (Mr. Oliver) control of the following names:

Calgary trail	$ 100
Miners flat and Stony Plain	$ 100
regional flat	100
Fort Saskatchewan, north side	100
Beaver Lake	50
Victoria	150

GENERAL.

The liberal conservative party informed R. Campton the candidate running against the new provincial secretary Mr. McLean, that "they were anxious to see if the government would carry out its policy in reference to the dual language and separate schools." In consequence of this Mr. Campton withdrew from the contest allowing Hon. Mr. McLean to go in unopposed. Feeling must be running pretty high on this question in the prairie province when it takes precedence over party.

According to Bradstreet's New England States want reciprocity with Canada in that they may have the advantage of cheap Nova Scotia coal in their manufacturing industries, and may be able to supply the Maritime provinces with western states flour. They also want free trade in lumber, as the Maine forests are becoming exhausted.

A competent authority states that four tenths of the area of the United States not including Alaska requires irrigation. This includes part of California, Texas, Nebraska, Oregon, all of Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Montana and portions of Washington and Dakota.
